

TARIFF DEBATES TO BE MOST SPIRITED

INDICATIONS ARE THAT THERE WILL BE LIVELY TIMES

REMARKS ARE CAUSTIC

Management Of Mt. Vernon Is To Be Investigated According To Report.

Washington, D. C., April 26.—Representative Carey of Washington wants the house interstate commerce committee to investigate the management of Mt. Vernon. Vernon's Ladies' Association which manages the historic spot shares profit.

General Debate. Action on the analysis of the income tax by Representative Hull was the subject today of the general debate on the tariff in the House. Other speakers on the program for the discussion of the tariff itself are to be heard. Mr. Hull replied today to comments upon the proposed income tax, stating that it was class legislation and a distinction between citizens with large means and those without means. He answered that its purpose was to invoke the tax upon those who are most able to bear it, that the masses of people were paying most of $212,000,000 tariff tax and most of the local taxes except in a few states. "Where then," he asked "is the injustice of requiring a tax on income of more than $4,000 to the federal treasury?"

He denied that there is any sectionalism in the effect of the tax. "It would be monstrous to say that the taxation of incomes drawn from all parts of the country would make segregation and upon the plea of segregation succeed in making exemptions to taxation. The tax he said is a fair productive response to the change in the rate of the collections of the custom houses. No honest tax payer need have any fears.

UPHOLDS ATTITUDE OF SHOE COMPANY

W. P. Malton, General Manager of Concern Excoriated by Vice Committee Makes Defense.

St. Louis, April 26.—W. P. Malton, general manager of the International Shoe Company, which was excoriated by the Illinois senate vice-committee at the hearing at Springfield, yesterday today said in regard to the investigation: "We had a thorough investigation and are open to suggestions from the commission as to the betterment of the conditions of our employees at Springfield. It is impossible in a factory running constantly to keep out incompetent individuals. To keep in our employ such incompetency is unfair to the competent help and disgraces the factory operation. We feel that thus far the commission has heard only this class whose sensational testimony does not represent the facts nor the feeling of our employees as a whole."

The Springfield factory earned only one half per cent on a million dollar output last year. We have operated that factory about a year, having bought it from a bankrupt firm. We will submit all our records to the commission, and our entire pay roll and if the evils can be found in our Springfield factories we will do our utmost to correct them."

WILL PERMIT CITIES TO ORGANIZE BANKS

Hinkel Bill Calculated to Allow Great Saving For Cities of First and Second Class.

Madison, Wis., April 26.—The Hinkel bill to permit cities of the first and second classes to establish national municipal banks has been recommended for passage by the assembly committee on municipalities. Mr. Hinkel, who for nearly twelve years was a city official of Milwaukee, and long city treasurer, believes that his enactment would save thousands of dollars annually to the taxpayers.

In the past 27 years the city of Milwaukee has paid out interest charges in excess of $9,000,000, which could have been saved the taxpayers had a municipal bank been in existence. At present when the city has bonds to sell it takes them to a bank and receives money upon which it pays interest at 6 per cent. The bank immediately takes the bonds to the United States treasury for deposit, and then issues bank notes on the strength of the deposits and loans out the money. The city could do the same and save all these interest charges with a municipal bank. While the bill applies only to cities of the first and second classes, there is no reason why it might not be extended to all cities."

LITTLE MONTENEGRO HAS WARM CHAMPION IN PRINCE HUMBERT

Nine Year Old Son of Italian King Does Not Approve of His Father's Attitude Toward Country.

Rome, April 26.—A valiant champion of little Montenegro, is Prince King Victor of Italy. Prince Humbert does not approve at all of his father's attitude toward Montenegro in the Balkan War and learned with dismay that Italy was in thorough accord with the other power in demanding that the Montenegrs lift the siege of Scutari.

A few days ago Prince Humbert was "playing war" with his sisters in the royal nursery. The King was an amused spectator of the game. Prince Humbert was the Montenegro leader and he "killed off" all the Turks—his sisters—in the game. Turning to his father, the little Prince demanded to be sent to Cetinje.

"Why" asked the King. "The Prince thought for a moment and remembered that his mother and grandfather were Montenegrs."

"Well," he replied "I think you had ought to be there fighting, but you don't, suppose I ought to go to grandpa and show him that we are on his side. Why are you not with him?"

"You see Italy is still fighting in Tripoli and I am required here," replied the King.

"But suppose you were not required here," asked the little critic, "would you go to Montenegro?"

"No, I do not think so," he said finally.

Prince Humbert shouldered his toy gun and shook his head.

"Think it is very wrong of you," he said emphatically. "I am going to practice so that I can kill all of grandpa's enemies. They're all Turks, anyway."

A Story of The Dutchess. Another incident to royalty which has provoked widespread discussion befell Princess Isabelle, Dutchess of Genoa, recently.

A year ago the Dutchess was passing on foot through her country place, on the outskirts of a tiny village, when her attendants were attracted to a party of strolling aerobists, quite as much by their poverty as by the cleverness of their tricks. She watched them for some time, then made an appointment with their leader for them all to come to the castle and perform. This they accepted eagerly.

They kept the appointment. The Dutchess was quite at home with them, listened to their stories, gave them a good dinner, paid them well and sent them away with new clothes. Then she forgot all about them.

Months passed. One day the Dutchess was walking in the park when she was suddenly seized by a man who was dressed in a ragged and filthy manner. He was very ill for weeks. When she was recovering the Duke received a charge and dirty envelope, addressed in an unskilled hand and forwarded from an obscure town many miles away. With caution the Duke took it open.

It was a letter from the band of little aerobists, signed with apparent difficulty by each one of them. They recalled the incident at the castle said they were greatly distressed to learn of the poor Dutchess' plight and wanted to do what they could to aid her. They were poor, the letter ran, and had no money to offer, but wouldn't the Dutchess allow them to come back to the castle and give as much of their skins as necessary to cover the scar on her arm?

The Dutchess wept when told of the offer. The sacrifice was not necessary, but the labored scrawl and the coarse dirty envelope are kept among her treasures.

To Restore Elasticity. Siena, which ranks fourth to Venice, Florence and Rome as a center for the study of Italian art, is awakening to her possibilities. The historic church of San Francesco, a Gothic basilica of the thirteenth century, which was practically demolished at the time of the French invasion, is to be restored. This is the first step in what may be a general plan to further the attractions of the city.

The committee of the restoration of the church, headed by Archbishop Seacchi, includes the best names of the Sienese aristocracy, such as Marchese Ballati-Neilli, Conte Chigi-Saraceni, Conte Piccolomini and Marchese Bichi-Ruspoli. The church, when restored will be a new attraction to tourists, there being in it rich sculptures, ancient frescoes now left to rot for the first time in centuries, stained glass from Munich and iron work of great value.

MRS. LA FOLLETTE LEADS IN ARGUMENT ON SUFFRAGE CAUSE

Wife of Wisconsin Senator Talks Before Suffrage Committee Declaring Women Are Interested in the Tariff.

Washington, April 26.—Suffragists for the second time in a week today stormed the capitol to argue why women should have the ballot and be admitted to suffrage on the same plane as men through the adoption of a constitutional amendment.

Among those present to plead for equal suffrage was Mrs. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Suffrage association. Mrs. Robert M. La Follette argued that women were also as vitally interested in tariff legislation as the men and declared that every important piece of legislation in the last twenty-five years had affected women equally.

"If the tariff in any way affects the price we pay for what we eat and wear, if the combinations have anything to do with the high cost of living women should understand about it," said Mrs. La Follette. "If the prices of the great staples like beef, sugar, oil, cottons and woollens are fixed by monopoly, if the tariff affects the cost of the children's food and clothes the only radical way to right the wrong is through national legislation."

"Women do the buying. Ninety per cent of ten million dollars paid out annually in the United States for food, clothing and shelter is spent by women."

Mrs. La Follette said that she was not one of those who believed that equal suffrage would bring about any immediate radical changes and declared that the real issue in the suffrage struggle was whether it was in the interest of home and society, which she maintained it was.

Dr. Shaw made the concluding argument: "We are not afraid of the body of ladies who are going up and down the land opposing suffrage. We are afraid of those who are holding out numbers to make a screen for the men operating dens of vice and iniquity and prostitution to hide behind. In every state where women now vote suffrage was opposed by the forces of evil for they know that we propose to make this country a place of safety where parents can see their daughters go to school in the morning and feel that they will return, and where a man need not fear to send his little girl on an errand through city streets. We will come again and again, and again. Our children will come and our grand children will come until this is a democracy in fact."

Gifford Pinchot made a brief speech: "Of course we all know that equal suffrage is coming. The only question is in what form," he concluded.

PRESBYTERIANS HOLD CONFERENCE IN MAY

THE REV. J. W. LAUGHLIN EXPLAINS SIGNIFICANCE OF SESSIONS.

REVIEW OF ALL WORK

Which Has Been Accomplished by Various Departments of the Church—To Treat Other Denominations Later.

The Reverend J. W. Laughlin of the First Presbyterian church, in a special article to the Gazette, describes the significance of the general assemblies of the Presbyterian church which convene in Atlanta. This is the first of a series of articles which Dr. Laughlin will submit with reference to various denominations. The following will be of special interest to Presbyterians.

The month of May is of special interest to the religious world. It is peculiarly so to the Presbyterian world. It is the time for the annual gathering of Presbyterians. The general assemblies of the Presbyterian churches always meet in the month of May. The "general assembly" is to the Presbyterian church what the "general conference" is to the Methodist, the "triennial council" is to the Congregational church, or the "Northern Baptist convention" is to the Baptist church. It is the time for the annual review by the highest ecclesiastical court of the work done by all the agencies of the particular denomination. Of these different gatherings and of the work they represent I shall have something to say in another article.

Presbyterian Assemblies.
The eyes of the Presbyterian world will be turned toward Atlanta, Ga., in the month of May for all the assemblies are to meet in the same city at the same time this year.

This means the Assembly of the First Presbyterian church north, the Assembly of the First Presbyterian church south, and the Assembly of the United Presbyterian church. What this gathering will mean to the Presbyterian world or to the world in general no one can tell. If politics, creed, sectional feelings, different methods of Christian activity or a different way of expressing the devotional feelings have separated these organizations in the past they are not to do so in the future. And there is no one who can forecast the future and say what this meeting will result in for the kingdom of righteousness and truth. What brought it about?

Was it a mere manipulation of conditions by long-headed churchmen? Was it buncme? Was it sentiment? Let it go at sentiment. There isn't a thing of much more value than sentiment anyway.

It is something that never has happened before and may never happen again. But the fact that the different branches of this part of Christendom have been growing for a number of years toward a closer union and co-operation is apparent. And there could be no more healthy religious indication than the willingness that manifested on the part of these churches to look each other in the face, to take each other by the hand, and laying aside all sectarian sectional feelings, to say: "Brethren, let's combine our forces. Let's be no longer competitors, but co-operators. The time for dissension has passed. The little things that once divided us are too trivial to sever men in the twentieth century. The business we are engaged in is too important to be retarded by trifles." It is confidently expected by all interested people that a closer union will result from this meeting.

Vast Work Done.
So vast is the work done by the Presbyterian church in the world and so intimately associated is it with all that relates to human uplift it is often forgotten or neglected in the presence of matters more clamorous for attention.

Who for instance has stopped to think that the president of the United States, the vice president, the secretary of state, besides a number of cabinet officers are Presbyterian, or who ever remarked that when President Harrison sat down with his cabinet at their first meeting every member save one was a Presbyterian. I know that this does not amount to much anyway for "a man may smile and smile and still be a villain." I have often heard of the old colored man who was asked how many different kinds of Christians there were in his community and when asked what kind of a Christian he was replied: "Oh, Boss, I isn't a Christian at all; I'm just a Presbyterian."

It is something, however, to meditate over that the Presbyterian church north makes an annual appropriation to the extension of the Kingdom of Christ in the foreign field of something like $2,877,845 dollars, the Presbyterian church, south, something like $2,877,845, the Presbyterian church, south, contributes $501,412 and the United Presbyterian church contributes $364,340. These organizations have on the foreign field an army of workers which is of no small consequence. They maintain a force of missionaries and native helpers numbering 4,767. They maintain a force of missionaries and native helpers numbering 4,767. This means that the influence of the gospel of Jesus Christ goes out through Presbyterian channels to every condition of mankind. It is educational, political, medical, social, religious. And in this way co-operating with other Christian agencies it aims to bring about a better social and individual life for all men.

Best Known Cough Remedy.
For forty-three years Dr. King's New Discovery has been known throughout the world as the most reliable cough remedy. Over three million bottles were used last year. Isn't this proof? It will get rid of your cough, or we will refund your money. J. J. Owens, of Allendale, S. C., writes the way hundreds of others have done: "After twenty years, I find that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best remedy for coughs and colds that I have ever used." For coughs and colds and all throat and lung troubles, it has no equal. 50c and $1.00 at People's Drug Store.

ter social and individual life for all men. The conditions in China alone at the present time is so imperative that the Northern Presbyterian church has asked for an appropriation of $700,000 in addition to the annual income, and one hundred more to meet the emergency.

Much Work at Home.
The Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian church, north, was the first to organize a "Department of Taber and Church" in the United States. This organization aims at bringing together the church and the laboring man by showing that the church is the best friend the laboring man has on earth. A great daily newspaper says of this department: "It is the most statesmanlike thing to be chronicled in the history of American Protestantism during the last decade." If America is to be the melting pot of the western world the Presbyterian church is trying to see that the proper constituency goes into the crucible for it maintains sixty-seven centers where work for the foreigner is being done. This "immigrant invasion" of which we hear so much, is something startling. It began a quarter of a century ago and during the past few years has surpassed anything in the history of this or any nation. They have been coming—these foreigners—at the rate of a million a year—an average of three thousand a day. Think of it! It is a march the like of it the world has never seen. A vast procession of varied humanity, in tongue, polyglot, in dress, indistinguishable in religion, every shade of belief and unbelief, a mighty throng carrying its equipment on its back, forever moving.

Who are these that are coming? Poles, Slovaks, Bohemians, Magyars, Letts, Ruthenians, Croatsians, Servians from every quarter of the globe. Anarchists, communists, socialists, Sabbath-breakers, blasphemers, with strange habits, customs, ideals, and ideas all seeking a home in the land of the free.

Home Mission's Function.
What shall we do with them? The Presbyterian church says these people must be Christianized and civilized. No greater opportunity ever came to the Christian people of America. Home missions is no longer confined to the planting of churches on the frontier. There is no frontier. Home missions means civilizing and Christianizing the man who lives next us. It means a better life—a life after the best pattern we know. It means that the people who come to this country in search for liberty and life shall have it in all its fullness. It means that they shall have homes, money, opportunity and development. But it means that that development shall be in a Christian environment which the churches of America are under obligations to give if they are true to the spirit and purpose of the Master whom they profess to serve.

In doing this the Presbyterian church north appropriates annually over one million dollars through its home board and maintains a force of 1,697 men. This does not include the army maintained by the Presbyterian church, south, or the force maintained by the United Presbyterian church. It is matters of this kind that bring together these great ecclesiastical bodies in annual meetings. It is that they may review the past and profit by the experiences of the year may plan for larger work in the future.

The City of Atlanta.
The trip to the place of meeting this year ought to be of interest. It will take the northern man through the famous blue grass region of Kentucky and the picturesque mountains of Tennessee. If he has an opportunity to stop at Chattanooga he can visit Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, Lookout mountain places which have been tender in association for a long while.

And around the city of Atlanta many bloody battles were fought. Sherman burned the city to ashes and left the railroads running into the city streaks of dust. Few cities of the south have so many associations clustering around them. "From Atlanta to the Sea" has been sung by the Blue and the Grey.

But those old days of section strife have gone. We are a united people now and if I were to venture a prophecy it would be that many times during this memorial-to-be meeting of northern and southern patriots, love of country and love of truth will often express itself in happy triumphant song. And why now? Who has not come to see that our best life is wrapped up in the maintenance of the one by the other.

METHODIST CHURCH SOUTH HAS ANNUAL MEETINGS

Dallas, Texas, April 2.—Outward and visible signs are abundant that a great denominational gathering is on the tapis. Page after page of the hotel registers is filled with distinguished names, while on the streets men of ministerial garb and countenance are to be encountered at every turn. These are the members of the four general boards and the College of Bishops of the Southern Methodist church, of which are to hold their annual meetings in Dallas during the ensuing two weeks. The proceedings began today with a meeting of the general board of education. Meetings of the general board of church extension, the Sunday school board and the Epworth League board will be held during the coming week and will be followed on May 5 by the opening of the annual session of the College of Bishops. An interesting feature of the program will be the laying of the corner stone for the new dormitory at the Southern Methodist University, which will take place next Wednesday under the auspices of the general board of education.

PRESIDENT WILSON OFF ON A RESTFUL RIVER VOYAGE

Washington, April 26.—President Wilson left the White House early today and boarded the government yacht Sylph for a trip down the Potomac to the Virginia capes and back. He expected to be away until some time tomorrow. Secretary Tumulty prescribed the trip as a relaxation and sent Dr. Cary Grayson naval aide at the White House to see that the President did absolutely no work. No correspondents accompanied him, but the yacht was to keep in touch with the navy yard by wireless.

PLANT GOLDEN GLOW OR SILVER KING IS A RULE OF CONTEST

Seed for Corn Contest May Be Secured from Gazette or Any Party Furnishing Pure Bred Seed.

Attention of the boys entering the Gazette corn contest is again called to the rule No. 2 on the entry blank which requires that "seed must be either Silver King (Wisconsin No. 7) or Golden Glow (Wisconsin No. 12)." The reason for selecting these two varieties is the fact that they have been proven to be best adapted to the climate of this section and the growth of these varieties from pure bred seed will undoubtedly secure best results.

Boys may secure their seed now either at the Gazette office or direct from Noyes Raessler at Beloit. However, it is not required that seed be secured from the Gazette, as contestants are free to buy it from any dealer or to use their own, provided of course, that it is of one or the other of the two varieties mentioned.

Any of the contestants furnishing their own seed should not neglect to send an entry blank to the Gazette Corn Contest editor before May 5th, in order that the Gazette may know just who is entered in the competition. Entry blanks must be in this office and on file before planting time and no one will be allowed to enter the contest after his crop has been planted.

Boys who buy their seed at the Gazette office will secure enough for one acre with allowance for replanting where hills have been destroyed, for actual cost which is one dollar. The same price will be charged those who send to Mr. Raessler whose seed will be on sale at the Gazette. And boys who have their own seed or who can secure the seed from their parties are welcome to do so. The Gazette simply wishes to make clear that it is not the object of the contest to boost any one grower's seed in particular, but advises that the boys plant the best seed they can secure.

It might be well to state concerning Mr. Raessler's seed that it has all been tested and found to be of very high germination; that it is first class in every respect. It was a stroke of luck that the Gazette could get Mr. Raessler to allow enough seed for the contest so great is the demand for his product.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, April 26, 1873.—For the first time in the memory of man, so late in the season, the bay and harbor at Milwaukee, on the 23, were filled with floating ice, and vessels that in the ice in the lake off that port.

STRAWBERRY PLANTS NEED VERY CAREFUL ATTENTION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., April 26.—Failure to get a good stand of strawberries may often be traced to neglect of the plants when they arrive from the nursery. Plants arriving in perfect condition may be ruined by careless handling before planting. Packages of strawberry plants, according to Prof. J. G. Moore of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin, should be opened as soon as received, and the plants "heeled-in" by being set in soil in a location protected from sun and wind. Heeling-in is accomplished by spreading on the soil pulverized peat, and making a broad V-shaped trench about eight inches deep. The plants are then distributed along the trench just far enough apart to allow the root to each to come fully in contact with the soil. The trench is then refilled and the soil compressed, care being taken that the crowns are not covered nor the upper parts of the roots exposed. Plants may be kept in this way for some time without being injured. Varieties should be labeled properly.

The girl was Olive Petters and the youth Elie Walkow. Many of the hundreds of people who witnessed the suicide fainted.

THE WAY TO HEALTH

CHIROPRACTIC POINTS THE WAY WITH UNFAILING DIRECTNESS.

Chiropactic is so wonderfully different from other methods that nothing short of a study of its principles ever reveal its merits. The old way has always been to doctor symptoms with remedies or treatments. But Chiropactic searches out the CAUSE of the symptoms and has nothing to do with drugs, surgery, osteopathy, magnetic healing, hypnosis, Christian Science, faith cures, etc., but is a distinctly separate and independent science able to eliminate the cause of disease without the assistance of these, or any other methods excepting the fundamental laws of protecting and rebuilding the body.

Illustration No. 2 shows the first cervical vertebra of the neck out of place. This will cause Neuralgia in the head. A woman who had suffered for many years was in this condition. She came to me and I found that the situation was pinching the nerves and cutting off the nervous impulses which are life itself. Several adjustments got it back in place and the lady has never been troubled with Neuralgia since.

Johnny Kilbane is determined to put on a dog just like the other top-notchers. The featherweight champion plans to tour Europe, with the idea of taking on all comers. He is evidently mindful of the easy money Frankie Klaus has been making in Paris.

The St. Louis Browns are believed to be the only baseball team in existence that passes a time clock. Manager George Stovall makes the players ring in at 10 o'clock for morning practice every day. The team is at home. He docks them for tardiness on the basis of two-hour days.

Ed Geers, veteran driver and trainer, hopes to clean up over the Grand Circuit this year with Barney Gibbs, a horse of the peculiar type known as a "paddler." This means that he brings his left forefoot forward for a step in a swinging circle instead of straight and true as do normal horses. Trotters with this flaw have seldom been successful. Lobasco and Casade, trotters of former years, are the only ones known to fame.

The Nighthawk-Named New York team of the American League has a new title. "Yankees," "Highlanders," and "Hilltoppers," are all to go into disrepair in favor of "Terriers." A bull pup given to Frank Chance and adopted as a mascot is the cause.

A world's tournament record for individual bowling was established in the National Bowling Association's seventh tournament held recently in Rochester, N. Y., when George Kumpf of Buffalo spilled 712 pins. His games were 224, 234 and 254. This figure bears the N. B. A. and A. B. C. marks of 705.

That 50 per cent of the major league clubs and 75 per cent of the little clubs lost money last year is the statement of President W. H. Locke of the Philadelphia National League club in answer to the proposed congressional search for a baseball trust. He says this was due to the high salaries paid players and the heavy traveling expenses, coupled with the money spent in rebuilding ball parks.

A mere $25,000 is the bonus that Percy Haughton, Harvard football coach, is to receive in addition to his salary of $5,000. The bonus is not in money, but is a seat in the Boston stock exchange, worth that price, and given to Haughton so that he can combine his stock brokerage business with football.

In an alleged ball game played at St. Paul recently Toledo and St. Paul teams of the American Association made 43 hits, good for 50 bases and a score of 31 runs. There were nine errors. Toledo scored 11 runs in the second inning. The game went to 11 innings, Toledo winning 17 to 14.

Manager Jimmy Dunn has accepted the terms of promoter Tom McCarthy for Johnnie Kilbane, featherweight champion, to fight Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion, at Los Angeles, July 4. Dunn says he wants the world to see what a fighter Kilbane is. Ritchie probably will do a great deal of thinking before he consents to take on the ambitious little brawler for a reduction of 123 pounds might weaken him considerably.

MAKE AN INVESTIGATION OF JUVENILE COLORED HOME

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, April 25.—Seventeen pickaninies, inmates of a juvenile home on Ada street, came under the scrutiny of the Illinois legislative home finding committee today. The children were found in a muddy yard surrounding two small cottages and according to the negro men and women who conducted the home were cast on the world from the "red light" district, the penitentiary and the insane asylum. The committee learned that three white children were sent to the place last summer. One boy died of some unrecorded illness. The others later were taken to some other institution. The committee also learned that three negro children were sent to the home from Bloomington, Ill., a year ago.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

Many men who enjoy fishing visit Southern Florida in the winter season and spend their time in efforts to capture some of the game salt water fish which are so abundant in southern waters.

The Gulf of Mexico has a long shore line extending from Cape Sable, at the extreme southwestern end of Florida, to Pensacola in the northwest corner of the state, and this territory, with its great bays and harbors dotted with islands, and fed by gulf passes, is the fisherman's paradise.

North from Cape Sable, for one hundred and fifty miles to Sanibel Pass, where the Sanibel light-house is located, the gulf skirts the shore of the ten thousand islands, known as the "Florida Keys," and the great Everglade swamp, the most God-forsaken country in the land.

This section of shore line is given over to market fishermen, who ply their trade with nets, and their catch is picked up two or three times a week by fish boats sent out by dealers from Punta Gorda, a shipping point at the head of Charlotte harbor, fifty miles north of Sanibel pass.

This part of Florida is seldom visited by tourists, as there are no passenger boats running, and but few places of entertainment. Aside from the fishermen the northern land shark is about the only invader. His blue prints indicate that the swamp is an Eldorado, and his victims are scattered all over the north and west.

From Sanibel Pass north one hundred and fifty miles to St. Petersburg gulf passes supply the bays and harbors with clear blue water, and when the tides come in these passes are filled with all kinds of fish, and the inland waters thus supplied are the noted fishing grounds where all kinds of fish are captured with hook and line.

The king-fish of these waters is the silver scaled tarpon, weighing from fifty to two hundred pounds, as graceful as a small-mouthed black bass, and just as active, from the time he is hooked until landed.

No fisherman is satisfied until he has fought it out with a tarpon. Equipped with a rod six feet long and a reel carrying from eight hundred to one thousand feet of line, with a good boatman at the oars, he feels the first thrill of excitement when the great fish takes the bait and jumps into the air six feet, while the line spins off the reel at terrific speed as he makes his first run.

Then the thrills continue in rapid succession for an hour or more, while the fight is on, until at last the great fish is gaffed on the beach, and the man at the end of the rod, with every muscle sore from strenuous work, finds himself exhausted.

The next day he goes out for mackerel or red fish, and usually comes back rewarded, for table fish in great variety are found in these waters.

Emptying into these harbors and bays are fresh water rivers and creeks, streams which have their source many miles inland. The tides set back a dozen miles or more but the upper waters are always fresh abundant, the same fish that are found in the lakes of Wisconsin.

The inland lakes of Florida are stocked with these fish and it is no uncommon thing to catch them weighing from ten to twelve pounds. The Smithsonian Institute at Washington has specimens weighing more than twenty pounds, caught in these waters.

The little town of Cleveland, at the head of Charlotte harbor, is located at the mouth of one of these fresh water streams, known as "Shell Creek." It is as wide as a river, and navigable for fifteen miles with launches.

Ten miles from the mouth, the stream narrows down to one hundred feet or less, and winds its way through tropical foliage, which lines the shores, undisturbed by the hand of civilization.

A trip up Shell Creek is like a trip to Fairyland, and when the launch is left for rowboats, to explore the upper waters, the quiet water and shaded pools invite the fisherman to cast for black bass, and his efforts are always rewarded.

This fresh water fishing, in a salt water country, is one of the charms of Florida, and after the usual season closes and the ducks have gone north many a pleasant day may be spent with rod and line.

Northern people sometimes wonder how men and women content themselves with the simple life of the west coast of Florida. There's nothing strange about it if you enjoy nature, and possess the sporting instinct. If you don't, then it's better to follow the line of least resistance, down the east coast, and watch the gowns and the millionaires spend their money.

The natives of the west coast are primitive in more ways than one. They fish from the banks of the streams with a long cane pole, a crab bait, and a short line, and are usually satisfied with a mess of catfish, which are thicker than fleas in this country.

Some of them have a thirst which the dry laws of the state has failed to quench, and the methods they resort to, to satisfy it, are very amusing.

One old man drifted into the shipyard dock, the other day, with a little houseboat to be repaired. He was gloriously drunk the next day, and stayed drunk for a week. He wanted to treat everybody who came along, from a pocket full of ginger extract bottles, which he said was a poor substitute for whiskey, but it served to do the business.

Another old man who keeps a store, fixed up a concoction of fermented dried fruit which put him to sleep in an hour. His wife discovered the dose and turned it out in the back yard, and then the old man took to Peru, and was lost to the world for the balance of the day.

This is a great country for extracts and tin cans. Gardens are scarce and everybody lives on grits and canned goods. Someone asked a native of Key West, the other day, how the people on the island lived. He said: "We live on suckers in the winter and grunts the balance of the year." "Grunts" are little fish which are very abundant.

There are no land sharks, or promoters among the natives. They have lived here too long, and are too honest to speculate on ignorance and incredulity. If you want to buy a Florida farm, consult a native.

PURE MOMENT

The Sanitary Man.
He tried out every new idea
And sanitary paper
He always wiped his face upon
A towel, of blotting paper
He never used a public cup
He always shunned the misses Because he feared the peril of
The microbes in the kisses.

His brushes were all sterilized.
No money would he handle.
He wouldn't touch a person's hand,
A handshake was a scandal.
He studied scientific books;
A sanitary grubber,
And when he touched a doorknob he
Would put on gloves of rubber.

He ate according to the rules
Laid down by Horace Fletcher.
He said they ne'er would have a chance
To tote him on a stretcher.
He lived a scientific life
And broke the routine never.
He said when all his friends were

The best laid plans of mice or men
Oft go awry, that's certain.
A train ran over him one day.
The end. Pull down the curtain.
The moral of the tale is this:
The sages oft repeat it—
Fate holds the ace in life's game.
No man lives who can beat it.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

IT IS THE MAN THAT COUNTS.

There is a great deal of weak and idle talk about luck, about some men getting on without earning promotion and others being held back who deserve to succeed.
Most of such talk is twaddle.
There are instances, of course, of men being advanced unduly through favoritism and of others being kept down through jealousy.

Yet—
If you will observe closely and for a long enough time you will generally find that the balance is struck; that the favored one will get his and the injured one will have redress.
Also, if you will learn all the facts in any given case, you will discover that the man who wins in a big way is the one with the brains and the nerve and the will to win.

Some men will remain clerks all their lives. They lack the initiative and force to rise out of the ranks.
But there have been conspicuous instances of clerks who went to the head of whatever business they were in.
It depends on the man.

You can't judge and measure men by the mass. You must discriminate. You must consider them as individuals.
Lincoln once illustrated it in the way. He said that in a time of crisis men were like a lot of stones placed in a sieve. As the sieve was shaken the larger stones came to the top. It shaken long enough and hard enough, finally the very biggest stone would emerge and take command. I am not attempting to quote his language, but only to give his thought.

It afterward transpired that he himself was that biggest stone.
Well, we are always living in more or less of a crisis, and the larger stones will find their way to the top. The shaking of circumstance and the force of individual gravity take the little men to the bottom and the big men to the top.

Shun the weak wailer who says he never had a chance. Every man has a chance, if he would seize it.
It is the man that counts. That is the one big fact that sticks out in all biography and all life.

As certainly as water seeks its level so do men gravitate to their place—or perhaps gravitate is not the word—so do men attain to their place.

There is as wide a range of difference between human beings as is found in the lower orders of creation.
It is individual character that tells the tale.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Would you make the mistake of buying a single or two-cylinder car? Of course not.

Would you make the mistake of buying a four-cylinder car today, when in the seven months, or since August, 1912, more than five times as many manufacturers have taken up the six-cylinder car?

Who would consider the purchase of an automobile today without fore doors? Not that such an automobile is not serviceable, but because it is out of date and has not kept up with the times.

In 1914, when every manufacturer who has been able to dispose of his old stock, is advocating and building left-side drives, will not the right-side drive car be as unsalable and conspicuously out of date as is the car without fore doors today, except fore doors can be added while a right side drive car not be changed to a left side drive?

CONTESTANTS SHOW
RENEWED INTEREST IN BUTTON SALES

Continuance of One Week by Twenty-five Thousand Club Will Mean
Many More Members.

With the extension of time for the sale of membership buttons for the Twenty-five Thousand club one week, closing at nine of May 6th instead of next Tuesday, as originally planned, renewed interest is shown in the race for membership. Already some good sized lists have been secured by various contestants, and it is expected that several new aspirants for the prizes offered, who appeared today, will make an equally good showing.
There was a further delay in securing the membership pins for the ladies who desire to join, a mistake being made in the original order. It is now expected they will be on hand Monday at the latest.

It is fast becoming a distinction to wear one of the little red buttons. The membership continues to grow almost hourly. The list of members contain all classes of citizens, in fact everyone in Janesville is interested in the new club and its organization. No similar organization has ever caused the interest that the new organization is creating. It is a movement to make Janesville a bigger city and one which is attracting attention even outside of the city itself.

Many residents of the county who either do their shopping here or sell their produce here, have affiliated with the new organization and paid their dollar and became members.
They are as much interested in seeing Janesville a city of twenty-five thousand inhabitants as are the residents themselves. The new move has been discussed at various women's clubs and endorsed and many will become active members. It has even been intimated that a woman be elected a member of the board of directors.

The real organization of the association will take place on May 6th, when a mass meeting will be held at the Myers theatre. Manager P. L.
Myers has practically donated the use of the theatre for the gathering and the Moose band, which furnished the music at the last meeting, have again signified their willingness to furnish the music. Chairman Frank Croak and the members of the organization committee, H. P. Richardson, William Kuhlow, J. W. Van Zeyn and S.
McJannet, have a plan under consideration as to the methods to be followed out in electing the board of directors. These will be constituted of fifteen members, who in turn will elect the officers to be determined upon from their number.

In view of the fact that the meeting
May 6th, will be for organization purposes, it has been decided that only members of the club will be admitted.
This however need not bar anyone as buttons and membership lists will be found at the doors and those who have not previously joined can do so at that time and have a vote in the organization of the club and election of the directors. The exact plans for this election have not yet been worked out.

One of the first bits of work that will confront the new club will be the arrangements for the meeting and entertainment of the special legislative committee that is seeking a location for the state fair if it is to be moved from Milwaukee. This committee of nine, six assemblymen and three senators, will be named this coming week and will immediately start on a tour of the cities seeking the fair location in order to make a report to the legislature within thirty days.

That Janesville will be prepared to put its best foot forward when this committee arrives is certain and an important part in the entertainment of the visitors, and in setting forth Janesville's claims to the honor.
As soon as the organization is complete the Southern Wisconsin Sand and Gravel company have offered to place a hundred dollars in the club's treasury, which with the membership fees will give the start of a working capital for the new club.

CONCRETE PAVEMENT
MEETS OPPOSITION

Division Street Property Owners Divided On Question—Number Favor Asphalt Macadam.

Division Street property owners are divided in their opinions as to what would make the most acceptable pavement. A short time ago a number of them petitioned the City Council that the street be permanently paved, and soon afterwards at a majority present expressed a preference for concrete. The announcement of this fact stirred up considerable opposition and resulted in the circulation and signing of a second petition which was placed before the Council at its meeting yesterday afternoon. The signers, twelve in number, object to concrete or brick on the ground that they are noisy, slippery and dusty. If not laid on a firm foundation they soon become uneven and broken. Concrete is liable to heaving and cracking, and when once broken through for repairs to pipes is difficult to place in good condition. Asphalt macadam is recommended as resisting erosion by water and easily made dust-less by the application of oil.
Those who signed the petition were
J. L. Lovejoy, Mary E. Farley,
Anna B. Baker, Maude McNeil, Mar-
the Ashcraft, W. E. Hough, L. M. Lee, Caroline E. Baker, W. E. Arnold, E.
Rathern, P. Broderick, and G. D.

long been unprovided with a horse,
its own will soon be provided with one and the Council directed City Clerk Hammarlund to confer with the chief of police concerning the purchase of
one. The appointment of Charles Thompson as special policeman was ratified.

The Council formally accepted the bonds and oaths of all the city officers recently appointed, and also approved the bonds of John Lutz, who was awarded the contract to construct all the cement sidewalk to be laid by the city during the ensuing year.

Printers of Rock and Adjoining Counties Met in Gazette Library
This Afternoon.

With a view of organizing a district branch of the Wisconsin State Franklin Club, members of the printers' craft of Rock and adjoining counties met this noon at luncheon at the Myers hotel followed by a business meeting in the library of the Gazette Printing Company. Nineteen sat down to the luncheon at the hotel and twenty-three members took part in the discussion of the afternoon. Paul Nahms of Milwaukee, former assistant secretary of the state organization gave an address as did Frank W.
Cantwell of Madison, former vice-president of the state organization.
Those who took dinner at the Myers and later in the general meeting were: H. W. Chadwick, P. Woodie, F.
H. Kohle and Mr. Tolson of Monroe, F. W. Coon of Edgerton, Frank Cantwell, W. Mayer and F. O. Bead
of Madison, J. S. Hubbard, F. W. Osburn, M. L. Marshall of Beloit, F. R. Bloodgood, Whitewater, J. M. Hibbard of Stoughton, Bert Hoard of Ft. Atkinson, George Knecht, Frank Slawson,

H. W. Frick, Frank W. Gibson and
S. A. Cooper of Janesville and W. H.
Hammond of Edgerton.

The Senior girls met yesterday afternoon for the purpose of selecting a May Queen for the pageant to be held Commencement week. It was little trouble to select a choice for at once the class by four unanimously on Miss Genevieve McGinley. She will be assisted by four attendants, or maids of honor, who will be chosen at a later time. Miss McGinley is well fitted for the position, and arrangements are now well under way to have her throne the best ever.

Besides selecting the May Queen,
several other important questions were voted on by the class. The class song went to Miss Jennie Pruner.
Miss Pruner is very capable in the matter of composing the song, and her experience should help her in arranging an exceptional composition. Andrew Connell was chosen after a close vote to give the class token. The token is not yet decided upon. The validictory address will be given by Miss Josie Austin. It was announced yesterday that this high honor would be awarded her. The other exercises have not been decided upon as yet.

ROBERTS IS A DELEGATE TO CHURCH CONFERENCE

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By
D. W. WATT

In eighteen hundred and eighty seven, which was the first year that the Buffalo Bill show went to Europe, it was along about the first of April when they were to leave New York on a boat chartered especially for the purpose.

They were scheduled to leave New York at 10:30, but early in the day the two hundred Indians or more which they were taking with them became separated and commenced to imbibe freely of their kind of "fire water" as they called it, at the different saloons surrounding Castle Garden.

The Adam Forepaugh and the Barnum shows were combined and showing in Madison Square Garden at the time, and nearly everybody connected with these two shows were down at the wharf to see the Buffalo Bill show off. Hundreds of us were there before nine in the morning and at that time there were not more than half of the Indians that could be found.

We formed small squads and started out through the district looking for the Indians and every few minutes they would come in with from one to three Indians and run them up the gang plank into the boat. Guards were there to watch them and see that they did not get off again, but it was well after the noon hour before they were all gathered in.

While this was Col. Cody's first appearance in Europe, he had been well advertised and opened for a season at the amphitheatre in London and soon after the opening it became the fad of the aristocrats of London and the surrounding country to take a drive in the overland coach which was drawn by eight mules.

But all these people seemed to think that the only man to "hold the whip" as they called it, was Col. Cody and there was nothing for the Col. to do but to mount the big overland coach and give his guests a drive after the eight mules. The fad soon spread over the country and many of the crowned heads and leaders of society were there day after day to take a fast ride in the overland coach with Col. Cody.

This did not particularly please the Colonel for the feature of the great show that he took over there was his great shooting and to grab up the heavy mules over the high wheels and drive them over the high wheels and top speed around the ring and bring them to a standstill and then pick up his rifle and attempt to break glass balls was not altogether to his liking.

One evening after the show had been there for some weeks, a distinguished gentleman came in all alone and insisted on having a ride in the coach. Buffalo Bill finally decided to give him a ride and his highness was placed in the hind seat of the coach all alone and Col. Cody started the mules on a run around the track. They were well trained and from a dead run he was often known to stop them still in a few feet.

His highness wore a tall silk hat and after making three or four turns of the hippodrome track, Col. Cody put his foot on the brake and pulled up and hollered: "Whoa!" to the mules and in a few feet they were at a standstill. But they had thrown their guest head first into the overland coach, with his silk hat drawn down over his ears and when his friends opened the door and helped him out, one of them said to him: "Your highness you should have stayed on the hind seat." His highness remarked: "I was to start with him and stayed as long as I could. Did they run against anything that made them stop so suddenly?"

Col. Cody said this was one of the aristocracy who never came back again for another ride.

The show remained in that country several years, toured all over Europe and as the saying goes, made a world of money, and Buffalo Bill carries many trophies of different kinds that were given him by crowned heads in all parts of Europe.

Only a few weeks ago the old champion prize fighter John L. Sullivan was in California for the purpose of refereeing a prize fight. After the audience had all got into the amphitheatre and about time for the preliminary bouts to commence, John L. Sullivan stepped onto the platform and he said: "You have all heard the news of the terrible floods in Ohio and Indiana and I think this would be a good place for us to take up a collection to be forwarded immediately to the sufferers. I am going to appoint six men to pass around the audience and solicit your contributions and I will take care of the people in the boxes at the ring side."

He appointed the six men and started through the crowd and then took his silk hat, put $50 in it as his contribution and started down through the audience in the boxes nearest the stage. When they got all through they counted the money and the contributions amounted to a little over $3,000, which was turned over to the proper authorities the next morning and immediately forwarded to the flood-sufferers in Indiana and Ohio.

John L. Sullivan in a short speech before he started the men through the audience said to them: "We don't care for your small change and anyway you had better keep that for street car and your postage stamps. Give us only big bills for these flood-sufferers will need thousands of dollars."

I think it was the same evening that Sarah Bernhardt the great actress was in Salt Lake City with her own company along about the middle of the performance she stepped in front of the curtain and announced that the next morning bright and early she would be on a certain street corner selling newspapers for the benefit of the flood-sufferers and she said: "You can rest assured that I will be there as early and as late as any of the rest of the 'newsies'."

She was there bright and early and it goes without saying that hundreds of people bought newspapers of Sarah Bernhardt and paid well for them; for many a one wanted to lay them away as souvenirs and to have it to say in years to come that "there is the newspaper that I bought of Sarah Bernhardt at such and such a corner when she was selling them for the benefit of the flood-sufferers in Ohio and Indiana."

What her contribution was, perhaps no one knows, but when she was through selling her newspapers she turned in upwards of $800.

I mention this simply to show you that show people in all different lines are always ready to put in their time and give up their money for those in need. But this was done in many states all over the country. Theatrical companies, moving picture shows and all kinds of amusement places gave a certain percentage of their day or evening receipts to the sufferers in the flooded districts.

Joseph Sold Into Egypt, Gen. xlii. Golden Text—Love thy neighbor, I Cor. xiii. 4.

(1) Verses 1-5—Who were the sons of Bilhah and the sons of Zilpah?

(2) What practical comment can you make on the fact that Jacob manifested in the family more love for Joseph than for the rest of his sons?

(3) Verses 6-8—Why did the brothers of Joseph hate him?

(4) Would you say, and why, that Joseph did wisely or not in telling his brothers his dreams?

(5) How much significance should a good young man in these days place upon a similar dream?

(6) What reason is there, if any, to believe that the wicked always hate the good when their interests seem to clash?

(7) Verses 9-11—What and when was the fulfillment of the dream of "the sun, the moon and the seven stars"?

(8) What would you say is the worst sin before God of which a soul can be guilty?

(9) Verses 12-17—If Joseph had not kept on looking or "wandering in the field" would he likely have found his brethren? Why?

(10) Verses 18-22—What reason is there to believe that when a man would like to kill another man that, whether he does it or not, God records against him the crime of murder?

(11) By what process of reasoning could these men justify themselves in the slaying of Joseph?

(12) What reason is there to believe that men can either temporarily or permanently upset God's plans?

(13) Did Reuben act as well under the circumstances as was possible, and why would you say that he did right to conceal his real motive concerning Joseph?

(14) Why is it ever right to plan for a lesser moral evil to prevent a greater one from happening? (Take for example the licensing of the liquor traffic, and in some countries like France, of the social evil.)

(15) Verses 23-28—Would you say or not, and why, that Joseph took all this cruelty with equanimity, or in oriental fashion, wrung his hands with grief and terror?

(16) Whose lot would you rather covet, and why, Joseph in the pit or the brothers eating bread at the mouth of the pit?

(17) What reason is there to believe that the righteous, at the time of his worst trials, is more blessed than the wicked at the time of his greatest triumph?

(18) Was it a part of God's plan that Joseph should be sold in this way? Give your reasons.

(19) If Joseph could have seen the end from the beginning he would have rejoiced. What reason is there to think that this is typical of all trouble which happens to God's children? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(20) Verses 29-36—What reason is there to believe that one sin is generally followed by another to cover up the first?

(21) Why did Jacob do well or ill in giving way to such violent grief?

EDGERTON DEBATING TEAM—1913.
Top Row—Lowell Whitsett, Glen Gardner, Harold Pratt.
Bottom Row—George Dahlman, Andrew Thoreson, Eugene Flarity.

The question for debate was: "Resolved, That the Popular Election of United States Senators is Most Feasible." The affirmative team was composed of Harold Pratt, Glenn Gardner and Eugene Flarity. They debated Stoughton at Edgerton and won a unanimous decision. George Dahlman, Andrew Thoreson and Lowell Whitsett had the negative of the argument and obtained a two to one victory at White-water.

The teams were drilled in a most efficient manner by Principal F. O. Holt and much credit is due to him for the splendid appearance which they made. The two teams were led by Lowell Whitsett and Eugene Flarity. Prospects for another banner year in debating are bright as two of the debaters, George Dahlman and Andrew Thoreson are seniors.

WATER POWER BILL MEETS OPPOSITION

Branded As An Attempt on Part of State to Get Control of Property to Which It Has No Right.
Madison, Wis., April 26.—The water power bill introduced by the conservation committee of the senate was scored as an unwarranted attempt on the part of the state to get control of property to which it had no right by Attorney R. W. Brazeau of Grand Rapids, C. Bundy of Eau Claire and Prof. Daniel W. Mead of the university at the hearing yesterday afternoon. The committee bill was explained and defended by Prof. John R. Commons. He said that the state should permit the creation of corporations that would develop the water powers on terms so that the property would ultimately vest in the state.

Prof. Mead said that the committee water power bill fixed limitations in nearly every direction; that it placed the owners in the hands of the commission, and that he could not advise the bond holders who consulted him to buy into Wisconsin water power property on the proposition offered.

Attorney Brazeau stated that the court had decided that the state owned the energy of flowing water. Such a right he said did not honestly carry with it the right to compel a person, who desired to develop a water power, to turn the property over to the state on terms agreed to in a contract. He said there were 350,000 horse power of water being wasted in the state and this was equal to a loss of 3,500,000 tons of coal. He declared that the state could pay a bounty to have these water powers developed. Senator Huston cited the fact that the states of California and Oregon exacted an annual charge of every horse power development.

The entire history of water power development in the state was reviewed by Mr. Bundy. He said that there had been no development of water powers in the state in the past six years due to this agitation. He urged the committee to recommend the Ackley bill for passage, which he admitted he had drawn, because he said that under the terms of that bill the state's interests would be amply conserved and that the state could ultimately purchase the power properties. Further hearings will be held next Tuesday.

5000 lbs. of clean wiping cloths, free from buttons, hooks and eyes and starch marks are wanted at the Gazette office at once.

Dinner Stories

A Jarvey was driving with an English visitor on a bitterly cold day in December through the wilds of Conemaugh. They became quite sociable on the way, and the native in a burst of confidence, pointed out a shebeen where the "best potheen in Connaught" might be obtained. The Englishman, only too glad to get an opportunity of warming himself, offered refreshment, which offer was readily accepted.

"'Tis a very cold day in these parts," said the tourist.

"'Tis, yer honor," replied Pot. He raised the glass, and the contents speedily vanished. "And there's truth in the old sayin'," he suggestively added, smacking his lips, "one swallow never made a summer."

The London club is remarkable for its silences, its cold silences. The playwright Barrie frequented the Athenaeum a long time without exchanging a syllable with a single fellow-member, and then, one afternoon, overcome with loneliness over his tea in the library, he ventured to address a remark upon the weather to an old fellow who sat before the fire with the Times. But the old fellow, instead of answering Barrie's remark, put down the Times, drew forth his handkerchief, and burst into sobs. "Why," said Barrie, puzzled and moved. "Why, what's the matter?" The old fellow looked at Barrie tenderly, and his eyes swimming in tears, he answered, "Oh, my dear sir, I have been a member of this club for thirty-seven years, and your kind words are the first that have ever been addressed to me within these walls."

SOURCES OF TYPHOID LARGELY IN COUNTRY

We are coming to the season of the year usually marked in our cities by the annual spring increase of typhoid, attributed to infectious materials carried by freshets into water-supplies. There has recently been a protest against what is called the rural origin of typhoid.

Typhoid is usually considered to be mainly, if not almost entirely, a water-borne disease. There is no doubt that drinking water has been responsible for the great majority of cases in large cities. Yet the water seems to be slightly, if at all, responsible for typhoid in New York. The proportion of cases to the population of the five boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx, Brooklyn, Queens and Richmond is about the same, though each borough has a special water supply. The more carefully the sources of New York's typhoid infections have been studied, the more frequently has milk been discovered to be the chief vehicle of infection. Efforts at control have resulted in decided improvement, but the education of the dairyman is a slow process and the dairy farming is still largely in the hands of the ignorant. After milk the most common source of typhoid fever in New York is infection of the patient while out of town. About one-quarter of all New York's typhoid infections are of this origin. While it is impossible to give any exact figures, over half of the typhoid infections are probably of rural origin. Any attempt on the part of New York further to reduce the incidence and the mortality of typhoid must consider the lessening of typhoid in the country places from which water, milk and food are drawn. During the past three years there have been an average of about 3,500 cases of the disease in the city, and about 550 deaths. This is too large a death-rate to be neglected.

The problem in New York is the same as that in other states. As our knowledge of sanitation grows, says the Journal of the American Medical Association, we realize that the health of the individual depends largely on the community in which he lives, and that the health of a community depends to a great extent on the health of other communities having commercial and other relations with it. It is, therefore, all-important to secure by general legislation such improvement of the health of smaller places as will assure large cities from being contaminated by them in the course of commercial relations. Properly directed, this will not inflict a burden on the smaller communities, but on the contrary by improving their health will prove of the greatest possible benefit.

GIVE TEN THOUSAND TO LA SALLE FOR PARK

In addition to donating fourteen acres of St. Vincent avenue property for park purposes, the heirs of the Hegeler estate have given notice to the city officials at LaSalle that they have set aside the sum of $10,000 for the equipment and arrangement of the park.

The plans also call for the construction of an athletic field to be used by the boys and girls of the city. At the southeast corner there will be a park house, equipped with rest room, shower bath and the like. "Camilla Hegeler Park" will be the name of the city's new recreation spot. This is following the wishes of the Hegeler heirs, who desire to make the place a memorial to their mother.

It is very probable that the park will comprise the entire fourteen acres. It was originally announced that a portion would be used as an experimental farm by the high school, but on account of the distance from the school grounds this plan will be abandoned.

The land for the last year or two has been used as the high school farm.

CONSIDER IRON ORE ROCK FOR HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT

(Marquette Eagle-Star.)

Iron ore rock such as has been used on some streets in the city of Marquette, and in many of the mining towns in the upper peninsula of Michigan, may be used by the city to improve the stretch of the Portersfield road within the city limits on which farmers are clamoring for improvement.

The iron ore rock, it is believed, can be secured for the price of loading and unloading and the freight. While it makes a rather unsightly road in wet weather, it nevertheless packs as hard as macadam and makes an excellent road. Mayor Fisher thinks after being used for a season or two and becoming properly packed it could be covered with several inches of crushed stone, making a road almost as good as a paved street.

PROPOSE TO PAVE FIVE BELOIT STREETS WITH BRICK

Initial steps were taken last night at the meeting of the common council to pave White avenue, Park avenue from White avenue to Lawton avenue, Lawton avenue from Park to Pleasant street, Bushnell street from Pleasant street to the Milwaukee road and the Milwaukee road from Bushnell street to the city limits.

The pavement will be of vitrified brick, according to the present plans. Before the pavement can be laid, however, all sewers, gas mains, and laterals and water mains must be put down in the streets named.

This means that the paving will, in all probability, not be done this year, and possibly not until two years from now.—News.

CITY SELLS CEMENT WALK FOR ADVERTISING PURPOSES

Wishing to extend a cement sidewalk a distance of three or four blocks to the new fair grounds and having no fund for the purpose, the town of Hope, Ark., constructed the extension by selling each outlined block of it as advertising space. A plat was made of the walk, showing it divided into numbered squares. A few of the squares were retained on which to place a short history of the town, giving names of prominent men, various industries, population at different dates and the names of county officers at the time, and the remainder were sold for advertising.

In most cases the advertising was done by forming the letters in the top coat before the final set, but a few of the advertisers furnished aluminum letters and numerals about three inches high. Although the sidewalk has now been laid for some time, the outlines of the letters are said to be as when first made.

DEFECTS ARE DEVELOPING IN WESTRUMITE PAVEMENT

(Antigo Journal.)

A large number of defects are showing up in the Westrumite paving of Superior street. In several places the surface is breaking and pulverizing and there is every indication of the rapid disintegration of the street.

The board of public works has already notified the Westrumite Company of the condition of the street and that the board will look to the company to repair it. According to the terms of the original contract the Westrumite is expected to rectify all errors of construction and all defects that show within a period of five years. This contract is also secured by a $11,000 bond of the National Surety Company.

STREET CORNER LOADING PROHIBITED IN FREEPORT

Freeport Bulletin: Loading on the street corners by citizens of Freeport will be no longer tolerated, so says Chief of Police Root. He has issued orders to his men to keep the people moving, and this applies both during the day and evening, and those who have been wont to congregate on the corners will have to seek other means of passing the time.

He also issued orders to arrest all bums and loafers who are in the habit of invading the alleys and side streets and these men will be taken to the stone quarry and put to work at 50 cents per day. The chief intends to see that these men work, and will also order all incoming tramps or wanderers who come from other cities to move just as soon as they touch Freeport.

WORK IS COMMENCED ON MONROE PAVEMENT

T. W. Quinn of Madison, who has the contract for paving the public square with cross-tied wood blocks, arrived here this morning with a force of men.

Paving machinery including a large cement mixer and steam road roller, was unloaded this morning. The spikes were placed in the roller wheels this afternoon and work of tearing up the square was actually begun.—Times.

DEMAND AN INVESTIGATION OF PAVING BRICK COMBINE

Kenosha, Wis.—On the allegation that a combine of material men and contractors has been made to regulate prices of public improvements in Wisconsin cities, the Kenosha common council has decided to ask a grand jury investigation.

It is alleged that all jobs in the state are now being parceled out by an organization in Milwaukee, and that there is no such thing as competitive bidding.

Several men prominently connected with the brick business in Milwaukee and Chicago are declared to be working in harmony with the alleged combine. All of these men will be summoned to appear before the special grand jury and tell what they know of the alleged combine.

MOTOR FIRE TRUCKS REDUCE EXPENSES

Rome Ga.—By the addition of two automobile chemical trucks to the equipment of the Rome fire department, it has been found feasible to abolish one of the stations that has been in use for a number of years, and to consolidate with the second station in the business part of the city. The station abandoned was at the city hall, and the room heretofore in use will be utilized for housing the automobile police patrol.

AUTO ODORS STATUTE UPHELD IN ILLINOIS

Springfield, Ill.—The supreme court has upheld the Chicago ordinance making it unlawful for owners or operators of automobiles or motorcycles to permit the escape of obnoxious smoke, gases, steam, or offensive odors. The municipal court, which held the ordinance invalid, is reversed and a test case involving a fine remanded.

MADISON MUNICIPAL STONE USED IN LIMITED AMOUNT

(State Journal.)

It has been decided by the board of public works not to suspend operations at the city stone quarry, although the stone will be used in a limited manner. Stone from the city quarry is deemed too soft to be used as top-dressing for street improvement work, but it is considered available for use in concrete work.

Municipal Pleasure Dock.

Work will start in a few days on the new public pleasure dock for the city of Sterling, Ill. It will be located at the foot of First avenue. It will take several weeks to complete the dock and the sidewalks at that place, but when completed, although not very large, yet the dock will be a credit to the city. It is expected that some day the docks can be extended, especially if the bridge is raised.

AUTOMOBILES AT CUT PRICES

Sounds inviting, doesn't it? But is there any such thing in reality?

A dealer may offer his car at what looks to be a cut price. He may say that he can "save you some money."

But can he? Let us see.

There are about as many classes of automobiles as there are different makes of cars.

One class is the car whose chief excuse and usually whose only excuse for consideration is the fact that you can buy it and get "something off" or something "thrown in."

Now the fact is, you don't in reality, get anything "off" and you don't get anything "thrown in."

If you are offered "something off" the chances are 100 to 1 that you are getting "something on."

If you are offered something "thrown in," rest assured that the price you are paying amply covers what you think are getting for nothing. You can also be ninety-nine per cent sure that somebody else is getting more "off" or more "thrown in" than you are.

Any concession at all is evidence of weakness. It is evidence that the bars are down so why stop at a small concession; why not get the limit? Somebody else will get it; why not you?

In this class of cars the list price or catalog price is simply a formality, merely an arbitrary amount from which to figure a discount—five, ten, twenty or thirty per cent—whatever your buying ability will enable you to get.

Such cars are not intended to be sold at list price. The list price is purposely set away in excess of what the car is ever expected to sell for and the dealer is given a long discount for the very purpose of enabling him to use the discount bait on the man who pats himself on the back and says, "What a shrewd buyer am I!"

If the aforesaid shrewd buyer, or the man who is offered a long price for his second-hand car, will halt in his congratulations of himself just long enough to give his common sense an opportunity to get into play the probabilities are that it will assert itself.

Cars of this type are usually turned out by concerns which hope to take advantage of the popularity of the automobile by filling in the shortage caused by the demand for really good cars being greater than the supply.

They are not blind to the fact that a goodly portion of new buyers are unfamiliar with motor car construction and motor car values. Their hope of success lies in the fact that they can turn out something that has the appearance of an automobile something that will actually run and probably make a good demonstration. It may even run well for several months, particularly if "handled with gloves." The future is of little consequence. The motto is, "Get the money." Get all you can but—sell the car.

Another purpose of the over-price and the long discount is to enable the dealer to allow what looks like a liberal sum for a second-hand car. If the man who trades in his second-hand car will follow it up and see what happens, he will probably find that the dealer, who took it in, will dispose of it for several hundred dollars less than he allowed for it.

Do you think he is losing money? Hardly. The long discount he got on the new car was ample to take care of the reduction he made when selling the second-hand car and still leave him a good profit on the whole transaction.

When a dealer offers to "split" with the customer, it is evidence on the face of it that he gets a long discount and that the car he is selling is one which in order that the dealer may offer "inducements" inducements which are a delusion and a snare.

The following is an extract from a letter which was brought to the writer's attention, sent out by a motor car maker:

March 16, 1912.

Dear Sir:

If you sell automobiles, this is a chance for you to make money.

Here is a car that has never been sold at retail for a cent less than $2,100, and to the dealer 20 per cent or 25 per cent.

For immediate acceptance, subject to prior sale, we will let you have one or more of these cars at 40 per cent off, costing you just $1,260 each.

These cars were first put out in the late summer, and to get down to blunt talk, are a whole lot better than the big run of 1912 cars. They are up to date, expensive high grade construction, the best that money will buy.

Now here's where you come out on top. Take Jones with his 1909. . . . Allow $500 on his car—you get $1,500—a clean profit of $325 cold cash and the old car thrown in.

We have also ten powerful roadsters, price $1,475. You can have these for a straight $900 each.

You can send your order by mail, or if you want to come to the factory to see, and will buy and pick out your own car, we will pay your railroad fare one way. Think this over, make up your mind to get in on this deal, and let us hear from you at once by letter or wire.

Yours truly,

MOTOR CAR COMPANY.

Then comes another class.

This comprises the cars that are honestly built by makers of repute who have a reputation at stake.

Such cars usually offer a dollar for dollar value. They are listed at prices which afford no more than a legitimate margin of profit to the maker and to the distributor who takes an interest in the cars after they are sold and whose future success in business depends upon the service he renders to the users, and upon the satisfaction which the cars render to their owners.

If a dealer is handling an automobile that is honestly built and listed at an honest price, the discount he gets from the maker is no more than sufficient to allow him the legitimate margin of profit to which he is entitled and to enable him to render to the purchaser the service which any automobile owner needs.

The automobile dealer who gets no more than the legitimate discount cannot afford to divide it with the customer and stay in business.

An automobile dealer is in business for the same purpose that other people are—to make money. He will either make money or he will have to go out of business.

To be able to remain in business, he must sell his cars at a profit. If he is not going to remain in business his car would be a poor investment at any price.

If there is any one thing in which discretion and judgment are needed, it is in the purchase of a motor car.

First cost, while of course should be a consideration, it should by no means be the only consideration.

The saving (?) of a few hundred dollars in the purchase price may sometimes look tempting, but if that saving is more than offset in a short time by upkeep cost, has anything been gained? Not only has nothing been gained but the car becomes a continual aggravation, annoyance and expense.

If, in the saving (?) in the purchase price, the buyer has not obtained enough "off" to bring the price down to where it ought to be—a price which is commensurate with the actual worth of the car—what happens?

He will find when he wants to sell his car—and it probably won't be long until he does want to sell it—that he will not only have to sell it in accordance with its natural depreciation but he will have to stand the still further loss of an amount equal to the difference between what he actually paid for the car and what he would have paid for it if he had gotten it at as low a price as the dealer was receiving from other buyers.

The cut price dealer is not infrequently the reflection of the concern whose car he sells. He usually has but a small investment, if any. He seldom has an organization worthy the name. He has no reputation to maintain, neither does he expect to build one. He sells the cars for as much above cost as possible, five hundred dollars profit or more. If he can get it, one hundred or less, if he has to take it. His motto is, "Make hay while the sun shines." After the car is sold, his interest in the customer ceases.

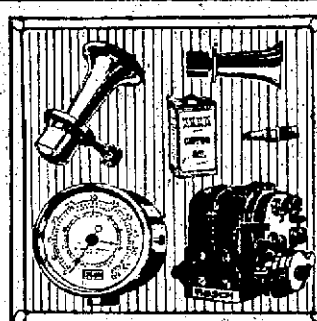

The buyer must get along as best he can. No assistance, no service, just shift for himself and make the best of it.

The time was when there may have been some excuse for one's making a mistake in buying a motor car. But that time is past. There is no excuse for going wrong now.

All you have to do is to make a common sense investigation and post yourself concerning the various cars, the same as you would post yourself on any other business proposition, and not go at it with your eyes shut.

Shop in the Gazette before you shop in the store.

"THE BOHEMIAN GIRL" WAS RICHLY STAGED

Production by Aborn Opera Company
Treat to Janesville Theatre-goers—New Features Appreciated

Revision of grand opera, especially the taking of such liberties, as the introduction of vaudeville, may not meet with the approval of fastidious opera lovers, but there is no question that the Aborn Opera Company's production of "The Bohemian Girl" at the Myers theatre last night, in which such innovations were made, met with general approval. Janesville theatre-goers have seldom seen a production so sumptuously staged and complete in every particular. The array of scenic effects, costumes, and stage machinery was used with wonderful effectiveness, and produced harmonious and beautiful settings for all parts of the opera story.

But the charm of the Aborn production is not confined to its magnificent settings. Its soloists and choruses reawakened those melodies and haunting harmonies that charmed an earlier generation and made new admirers of them among those to whom they were unfamiliar. Blanche Morris, who played the part of Arline, "The Bohemian Girl," has a rich soprano voice, well controlled and of great range, and sang "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls" and other selections in a very pleasing manner. Her stage appearance was also pleasing, though wanting in action.

Claudia Albright as "Queen of the Gypsies," is effective both as an actor and singer. Throughout the production she sustained the dignified and haughty bearing that became the part, and the audience would have been glad to hear more of her mellow contralto voice.

"Count Arneim" was personated by James Stevens, who brought to the part an excellent baritone, as well as acting that was free from affectation and strong in his composure and ease of humor. His selection, "The Heart Bowed Down," was perhaps the most appreciated of the entire production.

"Thaddeus," the role of John Phillips, was one of the most difficult to sustain, and although his tenor voice appeared the worse for a slight cold, his performance was creditable. His "Then You'll Remember Me" showed it at his best and brought hearty applause and a call for an encore.

Augustus Vaughn as "Florestin," the count's nephew, made good as the awkward and supercilious nobleman suitor.

The Arabian acrobats, whose performance was introduced in the courtyard scene in the second act, were declared the best ever seen in this city, and kept the audience in continuous excitement by their tumbling evolutions and formations.

The "Dance of the Hours," taken from the "Carmen" opera, was a dazzling array of graceful movements, beautiful color effects, and haunting music, approved and admired by the entire audience.

The introduction of equestrianism in the first act, mounted on real horses, driven over inclines to simulate a mountain road, was one of the most popular innovations.

On Sunday, April 27, in the Episcopal churches throughout the country special prayers will be offered for the guidance of the deliberations of the new National assembly of the Chinese Republic, which is now in session. The prayers to be offered are the direct result of the following communication sent out by the Chinese government to the provincial authorities and leaders of Christian churches in China:

"Prayer is requested for the National Assembly now in session; for the new Government; for the President who is to be elected; for the constitution of the Republic; that the Government may be recognized by the powers; that peace may reign within our country; that strong and virtuous men may be elected to office; and that the Government may be established upon a strong foundation. Upon receipt of this telegram you are requested to notify all churches in your province that April twenty-seventh has been set aside as a day of prayer for the nation. Let all take part."

The following is a copy of the prayer which will be read in the various Episcopal churches of the United States, suggested by the Domestic and Foreign Missionary society, with headquarters in New York:

"O God, the helper of all who call upon Thee, without whom nothing is accomplished, nothing is holy. Look with compassion upon the people of China. In Thy mercy let them know the Truth that the Truth may make them free. Lead them in the paths of righteousness. Guide them in the choice of a chief magistrate. Direct and prosper the work of the National Assembly. And grant that all things may be so ordered and settled by their endeavors upon the best and surest foundations that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety may be established in their land for all generations. These things and whatsoever else Thou shalt see to be necessary and convenient for them, we humbly and fervently beseech Thee, O Lord and Saviour of all mankind. Amen."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

SAMUEL F. B. MORSE.

(By Howard L. Ramm.)

If it had not been for Samuel F. B. Morse, whose birthday we celebrate tomorrow, there would be no such thing as the telegraph instrument or the peak-headed telegraph operator who delivers a message four days after the funeral has been held. This is ample reason why we should pause a moment and review the life of this great and good man, who started out in life with nothing but his initials and would add with more decorations than a Russian wrestler.

The inventor of the telegraph was born in Charles town, Massachusetts, April 27, 1791. He became a painter and did quite a little sculpting, but after pursuing art all over Europe without quite catching up with it, he decided to invent the telegraph. There was a good deal of need of the telegraph in those days, owing to the fact that it took four weeks to send a letter successfully in any direction. Mr. Morse looked around him and saw people who had sent cunning letters in early youth and never received any reply to them. So he captured a little loose electric wire and taught it to run back and forth on a long wire and say "ah," and then set up an alphabet which always misspelled the name of the deceased and sounds like the prompt remarks of a man who has stepped on a tack in the bath room.

When Mr. Morse tried to sell his invention to the United States government, several congressmen wanted to have the commissioners of sanity stricken from his mind. Finally, however, after a long and arduous struggle, he effected a compromise. Prince Albert, earl and compelling a number of his wife's relatives, to retire from business with a pained look, he succeeded in securing an appropriation for a line between Washington and Baltimore. He used a slow grade of electricity at first, but it is faster now, so that a man can quote a price on a car of shelled corn by wire and get a reply the same week, unless the operator is in the middle of an interesting story. As a result of his invention, Mr. Morse became immensely wealthy and did not have to operate with two fingers and his tongue in order to make a living.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams

BY WALT MASON

The whole year round old William Wax reminds us that he pays his tax. The sun, he pays is pretty small, yet paying it sits up his gall, and freezes, cold as Arctic pole, the genial current of his soul. Because he pays a measly pound to make the blooming wheels go round he thinks those wheels should always go as he directs, now fast, now slow. The government should always pause before it fashions any laws or votes the blowing of a cent, to see if old Bill is content. He thinks he has the right to roost, while the TAX PAYER ever holds important post, to pound the toiling statesmen's backs because he pays his trifling tax. He writes long letters to the press in which he voices his distress, and shows that rascals are in vogue, that every statesman is a rogue. The quiet man who yearly whacks up twice as much as old Bill's tax, too busy is to rant and paw, and swears there ought to be a law. The tears still stream down old Bill's jowls; the less he pays the more he howls. It never occurs to Old Bill Wax that other fellows pay their tax; he bears the crushing weight alone and fills the air with grunts and groans. In every hamlet William dwells and jurs the welkin with his yells, which daily on the ear drums grate of those who really pay the freight.

His Revenge.

"Let me take that wretched thing home," said the patient, as the dentist relieved him of his aching molar. "I want to take it home and pop sugar in it and see it ache."

GENERAL WALTER SCHUYLER RETIRES FROM SERVICE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., April 26.—After more than forty years of honorable service, Brigadier General Walter S. Schuyler, who has been commander of the department of California since last June, was placed on the retired list today on account of age.

Gen. Schuyler is a native of Ithaca, N. Y., and a graduate of West Point in the class of 1870. He saw his first service in America during the campaign against the Apaches. Until the outbreak of the war with Spain, he passed through all the experiences common to officers prior to that time. With the beginning of hostilities he organized and commanded the 263rd New York, but did not get to the front until the Miles expedition to Porto Rico was organized. After the Porto Rican campaign he assisted in the pacification of the Philippines. During the Russo-Japanese war Gen. Schuyler served as senior attaché with Kuropat-kin, and was present with the Russian leader at the battles of Liaulung and the Yalu.

Can a Wife Be Too Self-Sacrificing?

A VOICE of many brands is given to brides. Some is helpful. Some isn't. But perhaps the thought given by a mother to her daughter who is soon to walk up the church aisle to the tune of the wedding march may be valuable to others.

"Don't sacrifice yourself needlessly," said the older woman. "It is the nature of many women, when they love, to give all of themselves without thought of consequences. And I am sorry to say, it is the nature of most men to take without thought of what this taking may mean. So when in the glow of self-sacrifice you decide not to keep a maid, and to do all the work yourself, so that Jack can get ahead, stop and ask, 'Is this absolutely necessary, and where will it lead to?' And when you run around and pick up after Jack and lay out his clothes, and become a sort of upper servant to him, for the joy of making his life as care-free as possible, ask yourself, 'Is this wise, and what will it lead to in the course of years?' It is possible for a wife to be too self-sacrificing."

There is food for thought in what this mother said.

Many a wife has begun life in the new home by doing the housework to show how saving she is. But in a little while she has found that her husband expects her to keep on doing it.

Many a wife has "skimped" on dress in order to please her husband by keeping bills down. But after a while there are unpleasant words, when she does indulge in what she feels is rightfully hers.

Many a wife has given up social pleasures in order that her husband may have the whole of her society only to discover that after a while he demands it, and is quite disgruntled at the thought of being dragged to the theatre or a party or to have her absent at some gathering.

To decide upon the right course in these matters, she should put the question this mother suggests, "Is this sacrifice on my part absolutely necessary?" and "What will it lead to?"

If it is absolutely necessary for her to do the housework, that is one thing. But if her husband can well afford a maid, and the extra time she thus secures will enable her to keep up mentally with the affairs of the day, and so really be a more congenial companion to a man of affairs, this is a side she should also consider.

In all these matters, the new wife needs to take a long look ahead, and not block her vision merely with the present. The decision she now makes, in these seemingly small matters, may mean much to the happiness of her after-life.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-five year old and very round shouldered. Is there any way to remedy this without the aid of shoulder braces?

WORRIED.

Shoulder braces may help some, but your will power can do a great deal more. Stand straight, with your chin and chest up, and stomach in. Practice deep breathing. Walk a great deal, holding your arms straight. If you work sitting at a desk or table in a low seat so you will not stoop over your work. It all depends upon yourself, my dear.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Please tell me what will develop my bust. I am large, enough other ways. If cocoa butter will, how much and how often must I use it. I want it developed as soon as possible.

(2) I am about eighteen years old and a nice looking blond. What color of suit would I look best in?

(3) How much does cocoa butter cost?

(4) What will whiten my neck?

(5) I have a pretty neck; how low in the back should I wear my dresses?

LOUISE R.

(1) The bust cannot be developed rapidly. It is very slow process, and any remedies that promise more are sure to be dangerous. Gentle massage with cocoa butter will help. Use a little cocoa butter melted in the palm of the hand and massage gently with a rotary motion. Deep breathing exercises will do even more good than the massage. Take them morning and evening outdoors or before an open window.

(2) Any of the delicate shades, I should think, would become you, unless your color is very high, when the deeper shades may be used. Azure, rose pink and pure white would probably do nicely.

(3) Five cents worth will be plenty for some time.

(4) Butter milk or lemon juice. Also if the neck is very dark, bind it with cloths wrung out of cold water, cover with flannel, and wear all night; do this two or three nights, but be careful not to take cold when the compress is taken off. For décolleté dress, cold cream the neck, wipe this off gently and dust with powder.

(5) Let your modesty decide that.

WOMAN SUFFERED TEN YEARS

From Nervousness Caused by Female Ills—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Auburn, N. Y.—"I suffered from nervousness for ten years, and had such organic pains that sometimes I would lie in bed four days at a time, could not eat or sleep, and did not want anyone to talk to me or bother me at all. Sometimes I would suffer for seven hours at a time. Different doctors did the best they could for me, but I could not get any relief. I began giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and now I am in good health."—Mrs. WILLIAM H. GILL, 16 Pleasant Street, Auburn, New York.

"Doctor's Daughter Took It."

St. Cloud, Minn.—"I was so run down by overwork and worry that I could not stand it to have my children talk aloud or walk heavy on the floor. One of my friends said, 'Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I know a doctor's daughter here in town who takes it, and she would not take it if it were not good.'"

I sent for the Compound at once and kept on taking it until I was all right."—Mrs. BERTHA M. QUICKSTADT, 727 5th Avenue, S., St. Cloud, Minn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon as the most efficient remedy for female ills. Why don't you try it?

(3) Five cents worth will be plenty for some time.

(4) Butter milk or lemon juice. Also if the neck is very dark, bind it with cloths wrung out of cold water, cover with flannel, and wear all night; do this two or three nights, but be careful not to take cold when the compress is taken off. For décolleté dress, cold cream the neck, wipe this off gently and dust with powder.

(5) Let your modesty decide that.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Do authors pay publishers for a copyright to their stories? (2) What kind of paper do authors use to write on. Just ordinary tablet paper.

I have no heart problems, and if I did have I would carefully ask you for advice.

INQUISITIVE.

(1) No. The copyright is obtained from the Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C. Write to him for information. (2) Ordinary foolscap is best, unless you have a typewriter and can use plain typewriter paper. I am glad you have no heart problems, my dear, and hope you may always be free from them.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please suggest some nice names for an advanced Sunday school class?

LEVYDEN.

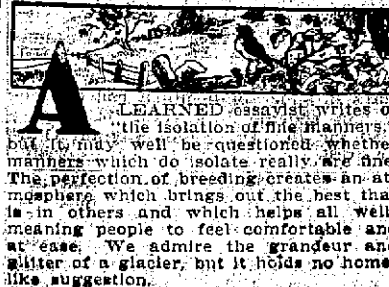

You do not say whether it is a class of boys, or girls, or mixed. You might call yourself the Pilgrims, or Christian Soldiers and take "Onward, Christian Soldiers" as your battle hymn. Or you might take the first initials of your last names and make a word out of it.

Everyday affairs will prevail as usual with you with no great events, but among those dear to you some trouble or disappointment threatens. You can foresee this trouble and possibly avert it.

Those born Sunday, April 27, will be careless of their belongings and so waste them in idle whims, causing infinite trouble for those on whom they depend, and later on themselves. These tendencies can be changed by teaching them when young to earn things and to suffer inconvenience from the lacking things which they destroy.

The KITCHEN CABINET

A FEW CHANGES IN BREAD.

The staff of life is bread, so a few variations of that staple may not come amiss.

Whole Wheat Bread.—Take a pint of whole wheat flour, a teaspoonful of soda and two of cream of tartar, a teaspoonful of salt and three-fourths of a pint of cold water. Sift the dry ingredients together, then add the water, stir well, then place in a well-greased tin, cover with buttered paper and steam for one hour. Remove and bake in the oven, which gives it a crisp, nutty flavor.

Southern Spoon Bread.—Pour a cup of boiling water on half a cup of corn meal, stirring briskly to keep it from lumping; cook five minutes over the heat, add a tablespoonful of butter, half a teaspoonful of salt, then remove from the fire and add a half cup of milk, a well beaten egg, pour into a well buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes, letting it brown well before removing. Serve from the dish with a tablespoon.

Fig Bread.—When the bread dough is risen, take two cupsful of it and put into a bowl and add a half cup of butter, a pound of sugar, a cup of milk, a pound each of raisins and figs, a teaspoonful of salt, spices to taste, mix all together and place in bread pans. The fruit is cut fine and mixed with flour, so that it is evenly distributed. About two cupsful of flour will be needed. Make into loaves and bake when well risen.

Bran Bread.—Take four cupsful of wheat bran, two cups of whole wheat flour, three-fourths of a cup of New Orleans molasses, a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of soda, two cupsful of sweet milk, two tablespoonfuls of shortening, a few raisins, if so desired, and bake one hour.

Graham Bread.—A cupful of flour, half a cupful of sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt, two cupsful of butter milk and two level teaspoonfuls of soda. Beat well and pour into a well buttered pan and bake one hour.

STREET COSTUME OF MODISH DESIGN

Combination gowns are extremely popular for street wear. The costume here shown is typical of the mode. The skirt, narrow at the waist, is of blue moire. The waist is of blue and cream brocade silk. The designer is Brandt of Paris.

Size of Brain and Eye.

Among human beings there is probably little difference in the sizes of the brains of the small-eyed ones than those with large eyes. Of course not many if any experiments along this line have been made, but it is claimed that men of unusual genius generally have striking eyes of more than average size. There are, of course, always exceptions.

The Evening Chit-Chat BY RUTH CAMERON

ON HURTING ONESELF.

A YOUNG traveling man, whose firm had broken faith with him on a promise to raise his salary, was telling how he evened things up by padding his expense account.

When someone criticized the ethics of this, he answered at once that he would never do it if he felt he were being fairly treated, but he considered he was only taking what rightfully belonged to him; his employers had not treated him honorably in breaking faith with him, and therefore he felt quite justified in not treating them honorably.

I think he made a mistake as on a life their two wrongs do not make a right. Dishonesty never justifies dishonesty. Meanness never justifies meanness. Selfishness never justifies selfishness. And so on down the whole line. The firm which broke faith with this young man was doing him a wrong. But not half so great as the wrong he did himself. What he did affected the conditions of his outward life, what he did affected his character—himself.

No one can really hurt you except yourself. There is a certain verse in the Bible which almost inspires in me the wish that I might be a minister for a day in order that I might preach upon it. It is this:

"There is nothing from without a man, that entering into him can defile him, but the things which come out of him, those are they that defile the man."

Doesn't that mean that the slights you receive, the dishonesty that is displayed towards you, the meanness you suffer from—all these are really outside of you and cannot do you any lasting hurt? It is only the unkindnesses which you show to others, the dishonesty in your own heart, the meanness to which you stoop, "The things that come out of you," that can really hurt you. In other words, no one can really hurt you but yourself. Somehow that is a very big thought to me.

I am the master of my fate.

I am the captain of my soul.

I cannot prevent other people from treating me dishonorably, but I can keep my own hands clean as a white flag. I cannot prevent other people from being rude and mean and deceitful and unkind to me, but within my own heart where I may enjoy it, I can keep a fair garden in which the flowers of kindness and courtesy and honor grow, unchoked by weeds of any kind. And no one can possibly rob or deface that garden.

Surprising Results from the Use of NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

READ MRS. SHARP'S LETTER

Luverne, Ala., Feb. 16, 1913.

I want to give my testimony on the wonderful results of using Herpicide. December 14th, 1911, we adopted a little girl from the orphanage. Her head was almost entirely covered with what we term "scald head," one side being entirely bald. I used every remedy I ever read or heard of including physician's prescriptions but they availed nothing. At last in desperation and as an experiment, because it isn't advertised for that, I began on Herpicide. The first few applications stopped the itching. After using two and a half bottles she was entirely cured.

I wish you could see her hair. If I had used any more Herpicide I don't know what we would have done with it as she already has hair enough for two. The bald places are well covered and it is peculiar that all the new hair is curly while the old hair is straight. The child, whose name is Elcurtis is now eight years old and calls herself the "Herpicide Girl."

MRS. C. W. SHARP.

Each day reveals marvelous and astonishing results achieved by the use of NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE. There are surprises in every bottle which may be experienced by the one who uses it carefully and faithfully. While the results are not always of such an astonishing nature as those experienced by Mrs. Sharp, they are invariably satisfying.

Herpicide eliminates all dandruff, stops itching of the scalp and prevents the hair from falling out. It gives the hair life, luster and luxuriance, so intensely admired by everyone and which is so naturally associated with NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE—the well known and Original Dandruff Germ Destroyer.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

The Garden.

Last summer I had some pumpkins coming up—bees and coal-shed. I let them grow there and trained them up the side and onto the roof. They not only covered the unsightly shed, but in the fall I took five pumpkins from the roof. They were all nice and large.

If you have a pair of old kid gloves, wear them in your garden. In handling hoe or rake, it prevents blisters. In pruning roses or other shrubs, you get no thorns into your fingers.

Planting. If you wish to grow fine plants, get them from the hardware store, and empty half kegs and knock out the bottom, put over your plants. If then grows very fast; stalks grow longer and more tender. Just try this.

Geraniums.

If you have last summer's geranium plants in the cellar, bring them up now, cut off all the dry parts and put the rest in clean water for four days before planting; then they will surely grow. If any life is left in them. This refers to geraniums that have been kept without pots.

When the fern does not thrive, try putting a little castor oil in a trench around the pot.

Cookies.

Ammonia Cookies.—Cream together three cups sugar, one cup lard, two eggs, one pint sweet milk. Add two tablespoons baker's ammonia dissolved in a little hot water, four teaspoonfuls baking powder, pinch of salt, two teaspoonfuls lemon extract, enough flour to make soft dough. Roll out thin and bake in quick oven.

This makes a large, inexpensive lot of cookies. Can be fixed up several nice ways. Put a raisin in center of some, sprinkle sugar or coconut on some and use different icings on some.

An excellent icing is made with one cup sugar, one fourth cup water, boil till it threads, pour over beaten white of an egg and beat thoroughly. Add one square of chocolate to above to make another nice icing.

Ginger Cookies.—Cream together one cup brown sugar, half cup each butter and lard, two eggs, one cup molasses, one teaspoon each of ginger and vinegar, one teaspoon soda dissolved in one fourth cup hot water. Add four enough to roll. Bake in quick oven to a nice brown.

Sugar Cookies.—Cream one cup butter and two eggs, then add two cups sugar, a pinch of salt and one cup milk. Stir three times, four cups flour with three teaspoonfuls baking powder, add one teaspoon vanilla, mix well and chill. Roll out in rounds and bake in quick oven.

Spice Drop Cookies.—Fine, especially for the summer months as they require no rolling. Two cups sugar, one half cup butter, and lard mixed, one cup raisins, one cup butter milk, one half cup sweet milk, one egg, one teaspoon each of cloves, cinnamon.

Surprising Results from the Use of NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

THE manufacturers make no claim of hair growing qualities or curative value for Herpicide. But the accompanying letter from Mrs. C. K. THE PURCHASE PRICE;

OR THE CAUSE OF COMPROMISE

By EMERSON HOUGH

Copyright, 1910, by Emerson Hough

"It's not as if I please," rejoined the other. "You order us back from our journey at your own peril. I'm an officer and I'm on my own way, and I am therefore under orders. I was following a prisoner late in my charge when I fell in with this party bound up the river to the Kansas front."

"The courts may take all that up. This is Missouri soil."

"It's no case for courts," answered the other sternly. "This will come before the court of God himself. If it means war, let it be war. I admit that we have a fugitive slave on board—a young woman. I suppose that was the excuse for your attack."

"It was the cause of it and we intend to take her," answered Dunwoody. "We don't intend to use violence unless it is necessary. But as to you, will you take your boat below and out of this country?"

"I will not."

"Very well, then, we'll take you from your own boat and we'll make her pay the penalty."

"By what right?"

"By the right of the long arm, since you insist."

"You would make us prisoners—without any process of law whatever!"

"You can thrash that out in your own courts later, if you like," said Dunwoody. "Meantime we'll see if I can't find a place that will hold you."

"Jamieson," he called out, "instant later, Clayton, come here. Take the roll of these men," he went on. "If any of them want to drop the thing at this point and go back, let them give parole. They'll have to agree to leave and never come back here again."

"To Carlsie, he said: 'The temper of my men is such that you are lucky to have a parole offered to you. You deserve not the treatment of soldiers, but of spies. You disgrace your uniform. These men are only boys. But what do they say, Clayton?' he demanded, turning to the latter as he finally returned."

"They consider the expedition at an end," returned the judge. "Three of them want to go on home to St. Louis. Yates yonder is in favor of hanging them all. The boys are bitter about losing Desha."

Dunwoody looked the young leader calmly in the face. "You hear," said he. "But you shall see that we are not such ruffians at heart in spite of all. It's my intention to conclude this matter as decently as possible."

"The others are willing to return," continued Judge Clayton. "They want to know what their captives intend."

"Their captives do not intend to surrender," rejoined the latter, fearlessly. "Let those desert who like."

"I am with you, captain," quietly said a tall young man of German accent who had been foremost in the fighting.

"Good, Lieutenant Kammerer," I knew you'd stick," commented the leader.

"As to the boat, Judge Clayton," resumed Dunwoody, "what shall we do with her?"

"Burned boats tell no tales," here called out young Yates sentimentally. "You hear," said Dunwoody, "my men are not children."

"It's piracy, that's all," rejoined the young leader.

"Not in the least, sir," broke in Judge Clayton. "We'll burn her here, tied to this bank on Missouri soil. The river fell during the night—some inches in all. She's hard aground on the shore."

"Fall in, men!" commanded Dunwoody, suddenly. "Jamieson, fix up my leg the best you can. It'll have to take its chances, for we're in a hurry. About the paroled men, get them in the rowboats and set them loose. Get your crippled men off the boat at once, Jamieson. This couple of prisoners I am going to take home with me. The rest can go."

"But there's one thing we've forgotten. Where's that girl?" He turned to the northern leader.

"She's below in the cabin."

"Go get her, Clayton," commanded Dunwoody. "We'll have to be quick now."

Clayton found his way down the narrow companionway and in the darkness of the unlighted lower deck fumbled for the lock of the cabin. When he threw open the door he found the interior dimly lighted by the low window. Wearily, with unspeakable sadness in every gesture, there sat the figure of the girl, Emily, around whose fortunes and centered all these turbulent scenes.

In the confusion which followed no one had a clear conception of all the events which concluded this tragic encounter. Dunwoody, Jamieson and Clayton cleared the men from the decks of the boat. The wounded hobbled to a place of shelter. The dead were laid out in a long and ghastly row at the edge of the willow grove. Meantime busy hands brought dried brush and piled it up against the side of the boat. In half an hour the Helen Bell, early border transport, was a mass of flames. In a quarter hour more her stacks had fallen overboard and the bulk lay consumed half to the water line.

CHAPTER X.

The Lady at Tallwoods.

THE arrival of the four visitors at Tallwoods and their departure so soon thereafter were events, of course, not unknown to Josephine, but only conjecture could exist in her mind as to the real nature of the errand in either case. Jeanne, her maid, speculated as to this openly.

"That doctor also, he is now gone," said she ruefully, "but yet behold the better opportunity for us to escape, madame. Ah, were it not for the injury of madame I should say let us at once set out. We could follow the road."

"But they will return!" exclaimed her mistress. "We cannot tell how long they will be gone. And, Jeanne, I suffer."

"Ah, my poor angel! You suffer! It is criminal. We dare not start. Content yourself to be weak and helpless for a time. Not even that brute, that assassin, that criminal, dare offend you now, madame. But of course he is impossible for one like madame. Yet I have delight to hear even a brute, an assassin, make such love—ah, such love!"

It was evening of the second day, and the shadows again were lying long across the valley when there came slowly filing into view along the turn of the road the band of returning riders. At their head was the tall form of Dunwoody, the others following, straggling, drooping in their saddles.

"There has been combat, madame!" whispered Jeanne. "See! He has been hurt. Look—those others!"

Dunwoody got out of his saddle with difficulty. He limped as he walked now. A slender man near him got down unaided, a tall German looking man followed suit. The group broke apart and showed a girl riding bound. Some one undid the bonds and helped her to the ground.

All of these things were apparent from the vantage ground of the upper story window, but Josephine, unwilling to play at spying, saw none of it. At last, however, an exclamation from Jeanne caused her to listen to the window. "Madame, madame, look—It is that officer—it is monsieur le capitaine Carlsie! Look, why then?"

With no more than a glance her mistress turned, flung open the door of the room, hurried down the stairs, passed out of the hall and so fronted these newcomers at the gallery. They stood, silent as they saw her. She herself was first to speak.

"What are you doing with that woman?" she demanded.

"They all stood in silence at this apparition of a woman—a young and beautiful woman—here at Tallwoods, where none had known of any woman, these many years," Dunwoody removed his hat. "Gentlemen," said he, "this is the Countess St. Aubain, who has come to see some parts of our country. Madame," he added, "this is Judge Clayton. He was on the Mound Vernon with us. Lieutenant Kammerer, I think, is the name of this gentleman, who came down here to teach us a few things. There has been some fighting. Mr. Yates—Mr. Jones. And this gentleman—he stepped back so that Carlsie might come into view—I think you already know."

"Madame, what are you doing here?" asked Carlsie. "But you're hurt. How is that? Have you also been attacked by these ruffians? I did not dream Dunwoody was actually so much a ruffian."

"Madame," said Dunwoody, slowly turning to her, "I can't exchange words now. There has been an encounter, as I said. There have been men killed, and some of us have been hurt. The northern abolitionists have made their first attack on southern soil. This gentleman is an army officer. I'm a United States marshal, and as a prisoner he's safe in talking. He has come here on his own moral initiative, in the interest of what you call freedom. You two should be friends once more. But would you mind helping me make these people comfortable as we can?"

"You are hurt yourself?" she said, turning toward him, seeing him white as he started up the step.

"No," he said curtly. "It's nothing."

"That girl yonder—ah! she has been whipped! My God in heaven! What is to be next in this wilderness? Is there indeed here no law, no justice?"

The deep voice of the German, Kammerer, broke in. "Thank God in heaven, at least you are a woman!" he said, turning to her.

"A woman? Why thank God for that? Here, at least, a woman's sole privilege is insult and abuse."

The others heard, but did not all understand her taunt. Tears sprang to the eyes of young Carlsie. "Don't talk so!" was all he could exclaim, feeling himself not wholly innocent of reproach. Dunwoody's face flushed a deep red.

"Madame," said he in a low voice, limping toward Josephine, "you and I must declare some sort of truce. The world has—has all gone better, skelter. What'll become of us? I don't know, but we need a woman here now."

She gazed at him steadily, but made no reply. Growling, he turned away and limped up the steps, beckoning the others to follow into the hall. In the door between the hall and the farther room there lay a mounted ridge of a bear skin. He ripped at its edge and fell, catching vainly at the door. A sharp exclamation escaped him. He did not at once rise. It was the arm of his prisoner, Carlsie, who aided him. "You are hurt, sir."

"No, no, go away!" exclaimed Dunwoody, as he struggled to his feet.

"One bone's gone," he said presently in a low tone to Clayton. "I broke it when I fell that time."

The men, captors and captives, looked blankly at one another. It was the mind of a woman which first rose to this occasion. In an instant Josephine, with a sudden exclamation, lunged aside the cushion.

"Jeanne! Sally!" she called. "Show these gentlemen to their rooms," naming Clayton and Jones. "Sir," she said to Dunwoody, whose injury she did not guess to be so severe, "you must lie down. Gentlemen, pass into the other room there, if you please." She motioned to the two prisoners and stepped to Dunwoody's side.

"I can't have this," he broke out suddenly. "You're hurt yourself. Go to your room! I tell you, it's nothing."

"Be quiet," she said, close at his ear. "I'm not afraid of you now."

In this strange house party a truce was tacitly agreed. Dunwoody's injury left Clayton practically leader of the Missourians. His party gravitated toward him, while opposite at the two prisoners, Carlsie and Kammerer.

Dunwoody in his own room was looking into the seriousness of his injury with the old trapper, Eleazar, once more summoned as resident physician. Eleazar shook his head when he had stripped off the first bloody bandages from the limb. "She'll be broke," was his dictum. "She'll be broke, broke. We must have doctor soon."

For half an hour the old man did the best he could, cleansing and rebandaging. "We must have doctor," complained he, mindful of Jamieson, far away, busy with cases as bad as this.

For half an hour or so Josephine remained in her own room above, having done all she could to establish some sort of order. All at once to her strained senses there seemed to flash some apprehension of a coming danger. She rose, tiptoed to her door, looked down. A moment later she turned and caught up an old pistol which hung on the wall near the door in the narrow hallway. Silently and swiftly she stepped forward to the head of the stairs.

What she saw now was this: Carlsie and Kammerer, themselves now armed with weapons carelessly left in the lower hall, had passed unnoticed from the dining room and now were tiptoeing down the hall toward the door of Dunwoody's apartment. Clayton and his men, lulled with loss of sleep, had allowed them to leave the main room and these two soldiers by training, had resolved to turn the tables and take possession of the place. Their plans were at the point of success. They had almost reached the door of Dunwoody's room, weapons in hand, when from above they heard a sharp command.

"Halt, there!" a woman cried to them.

Richmond Vacuum Cleaner

Keep your home absolutely clean. This can be done if you will install a RICHMOND Vacuum Cleaner.

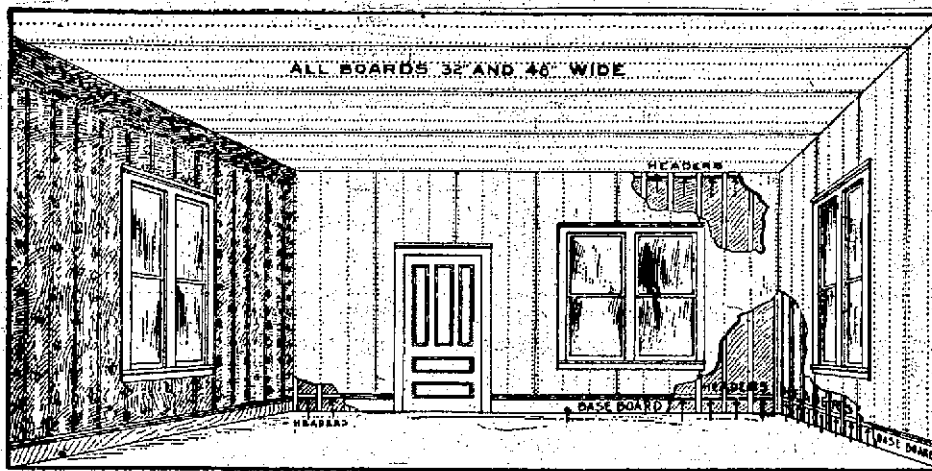

Just consider the difference between the use of the light and convenient tools of the RICHMOND and the drudgery of old-fashioned brooms, mops, rags, brushes, carpet sweepers, feather dusters and carpet beaters.

See our demonstration machine now in operation in our store.

The good lighting and ventilation of this home have caused favorable comments of all those who have seen it.

On the second floor two bedrooms and bath are provided. Above is an unfinished attic, and the basement extends under the entire house. One chimney serves the heating apparatus, kitchen range and living room fireplace.
